- Zébu the zebra
- Zola the koala
- Zagg the cat
- Zazza the mouse
- Zippo the hippo
- Zocco the crocodile

Category: Shaped board book

• Illustrator: Stéphanie Bardi

Format: 14 x 16,3 cm, 8 pp

• French SRP: 7,50 euros

• Pub Date : 2018

• Description:

Each Super Zero possesses one quality and one weakness – a plus and a minus. Take Zaza the mouse for example: I'm afraid of the dark but I have my torch. In an illustrated story, each hero confronts their fear and finds a way, alone or with the help of the others, to overcome it. The books are die-cut in the shapes of the heroes and even stand up thanks to their production in thick white card!

- Pub date: October 2019
- French SRP: 12,90 euro

Description:

Early morning ants cross the garden. They then discover an incredible treasure map. To carry out their quest, they will have to take paths of various shapes. Square, triangle, broken lines, bridges... so many shapes learned by the little ones.

In this album which reconciles narration and educational approach, Christophe Loupy, teacher in nursery school, offers a gentle learning of forms.

The child slides a plastic filter on each page and sees the ants start to move. Following closely their course, he discovers at the same time the outline of forms.

A story that comes alive to exercise your motor skills, master your graphic gesture and embark on the path of writing!

Ylusse and the Cyclops ^{NEW}

Age
7+

\(PDF\)

- Author : Benoît Perroud
- Format: 18 x 24 cm, 40 pp
- French price: 10,90 euros
- Pub Date : September 2020

Description:

Ylusse enjoys two things in life – drawing and making war. But he promised his mother he would be back in Etoc by dinner. Unfortunately, a storm shipwrecks his boat on an island and he is captured by Pol the Cyclops. To stop the giant from eating him, he shows off his drawing skills and paints the Cyclops' portrait. Pol is impressed and decides to wait until the morning to eat Ylusse. That night, Ylusse breaks Pol's eyeglass so that he cannot see anymore. The Cyclops opens the cave and lets all his sheep out, in the hope of finding Ylusse. But Ylusse covers himself in sheepskin and manages to escape. He sails back out to sea and home to his mother.

A funny take on Odysseus' adventures; the Cyclops is named Pol and wears an eyeglass that Ylusse breaks so that he can't see anymore..

- Pub Date : October 2020

Description:

"The man who killed you wanted me dead. I was nothing more than a hunting trophy for him. That bullet was meant for me, but it pierced your chest. Now it's my turn to pierce his skin..." Wearing her horse's skin as a coat, Nuée, a young sidesaddle rider, sets out to look for the murderer, Aaron Blake. Hiding in the undergrowth, listening out for foots-teps, she travels the deserts in search of the man who took her friend away. During her journey, she finds a horse and nurses it back to health, rediscovering that same bond. But she will not stop until she has found Aaron Blake. Then, finally, one day... she shoots an arrow and knocks the revolver out of her opponent's hand. She lets him live, preferring horses to humans. "No horse is cruel."

A story exploring the relationship between men and animals, particularly relevant today

And presided over by the king of animals, the lion, of course! May the competition begin! The animals take it in turns to present their dish, each one more inventive than the last: violist stew, croquenotes, double-bassist kebab... But the lion is not impressed... The competition soon goes wrong. The musicians go on strike, and the jury discovers that one of the dishes has been poisoned... Who wants to kill the lion? Who is guilty? The conductor of course! He wanted to get rid of the lion to become the new animal king...

From the tiny acorn to an old, majestic tree, we follow the hazardous path of a great oak tree. As the pages turn, the young tree grows taller while avoiding a thousand dangers like the squirrel that wants to eat it or the gale that tries to break it to grow tall and strong enough to shelter children's games one day.

Ghislaine Roman offers here small thoughts both crazy, unusual and full of common sense, such as children can sometimes state, all their curiosity of the world. "Good words" to which the work of Tom Schamp confers a poetic and playful dimension.

- Format: 13,5 x 20 cm, 160 pp
- French price: 12,90 euros
- Pub Date : August 2020

Description:

Today is Romane's first day in 5th grade. The morning starts like any other, with her sister copying everything she does, her mother looking for commercial auditions, and her father worrying about a nuclear attack at any moment. But the worst is yet to come... It would appear that her 5th grade teacher, Mr Boulala, has officially lost his mind and is determined to bring cosmic peace to the classroom. Then add to the mix Kedon the best-looking boy at school, Gilberte the most popular girl in the world, and Lucie her best friend who loves a challenge, and 5th grade seems to be off to an eventful start!

A graphic novel about a girl's everyday life, illustrated by Moricio's drawings, speech bubbles, and whacky sketches, in the style of "Diary of a Wimpy Kid" or the "Dork Diaries"

Description:

In the street, at school, nobody sees Simone. It's very simple, it's as if she were transparent. This is moreover the case. Literally. Because Simone is a very small translucent shrimp. But that's not why she's going to let herself be trodden on by this big clumsy Caesar Luminex, a big luminescent shrimp. Even if he seems to have lobsters in his family, he will see what he will see, this Luminex! Inspired by the boxing fights that she eagerly watches with her little sister Sibylle, Simone challenges Caesar in a singular fight, despite the reluctance of her friends Jimmy - a shy bright green shrimp - and Marlene - a sublime tiger prawn who spends her time remembering her that violence leads to nothing.

"Pressed Stories" is THE classic reading at Milan Editions. The principle: draw on the imagination of readers to give a few pages of real reading pleasure! Bernard Friot promised it: with "Tous pressés", he said goodbye to the writing of "Histoires pressées". This is the sixth title in the series, there will be no seventh. The stories in each title are for everyone, both children and adults. With stories that tell the relationships between children (or adolescents) and adults, adopting the point of view sometimes of one, sometimes of others. Each of these stories - there are 36 of them, no more than 3 or 4 pages long - is a little gem of writing.

Sold in more than a million copies, the "Pressed Stories", are referenced by the Ministry of Education in France since 2002 and included in school books. Translated in more than 7 languages.

-Le destin de Linus Hoppe

Linus Hoppe lives in a very hierarchic society. If he passes the big exam, he will continue to live comfortably in sphere 1. If he fails, he will be relegated to a lower sphere, far from his own. But Linus refuses to leave his fate in the hands of the Grand Authorizing Officer. With his friend Chem, he decides, even if it means facing danger, to thwart the system.

-La magnifique

Bella Rossa is twenty years old, a wild beauty, flamboyant hair, a generous breast and a well-tempered temperament. Fortunately! Because at her home in Maussad-Vallée, life was nothing but a series of calamities. Bella Rossa dreams of fortune, of happiness, and wants to discover the continent. What she does not know is that she will fail to die because of a lead nugget and that another nugget will later change her life. What she ignores is that there are more precious nuggets than those of gold prospectors ...

-Le temps des miracles

When customs officers found me crouching in the back of a truck at the French border, I was twelve years old and I was alone. I did not know that my passport was falsified, and apart few French words, I only spoke Russian. I could not explain how I came from the Caucasus so far, to the country of human rights and Charles Baudelaire.

-18 titles

- Format: 19,7 x 19,7 cm, 32 pp
- Category: documentary
- French SRP: 7,60 euros
- Pub Date : 2017-2020

Description:

A new collection of illustrated documentaries that presents the highlights of the emotional life of children from 3 years. A narrative thread to promote proximity, identification and complicity, short texts, soft and funny illustrations make this collection the ideal way to talk about all the subjects that touch the child closely. The abyss by fiction allows a more immediate and concrete understanding, while the documentary part gives the words that adults often miss in answering questions about children.
