When the first scientists began to study animal behavior, they were hesitant to talk about friendship.

However, as more research was conducted on animals, the scientific community realized that they were not so different from us. Some species also form friendships that can last a lifetime. They enjoy spending time together, help each other when needed, and feel sadness when something bad happens to their companion. Like us, they care about their friends because they too are capable of feeling emotions.

This book presents different animal behaviors that have been studied and reveals some amazing examples of animal emotions.

Laura Camón is a scientific communicator, holding a degree in Biology from the University of Salamanca and a Master's degree in Primatology from the University of Girona. Ever since she was very young, she knew she wanted to work researching on animal behavior. Currently, she works as a scientific communicator and regularly collaborates with Materia, the science section of El País, with the Institute of Responsible Tourism and with the Ágora program of Aragón Radio.

Camille de Cussac is a young illustrator, Parisian, and close to the animal world, who places color everywhere, especially where it is least expected: her world is a joyful version of ours, where a crowd of expressive animals, uninhibited characters with purple skin and turquoise hair, eccentric musicians, and harmonious natural or urban landscapes accumulate. And Camille writes as well as she draws; her children's books published by Thierry Magnier, Gallimard, Seuil, Marcel & Joachim, or Les Éditions du Trésor, always cheerful and educational, are often from her pen too!

The path to our dreams is riddled with obstacles, and one of the most challenging is navigating through the criticisms and skepticism of others. However, those who truly succeed are those who cling to their vision and remain steadfast in their determination, despite voices attempting to dissuade them.

Historically, countless examples abound of individuals who defied expectations and achieved great things despite facing doubt. Yet, their unwavering faith in themselves and their dreams propelled them past any obstacle to success.

People that achieved their dreams by ignoring the opinions of the foolish.

Alice Piaggio is an Italian illustrator. She graduated in Graphics and Illustration at the ISIA institute in Urbino. She lives in Switzerland, surrounded by snow-capped mountains, green meadows and chestnut woods. She was selected in 2021 among the 20 most promising young Italian illustrators by the Bologna Children's Book Fair and exhibited in Eccellenze Italiane- La nuova generazione degli illustratori italiani per ragazzi.

She collaborates with Italian and foreign magazines and publishers.

Often, a story reveals more about the storyteller than the characters it describes. Throughout history, women have appeared in myths and legends, often in supporting roles to male heroes, making them largely invisible.

Their personalities, desires, motivations, and thoughts have been overlooked. But what if we shift our perspective? This book centers on mythological women, encouraging readers to see them as independent figures rather than mere additions to stories about men. Let's bring the invisible to light. These are their stories.

For centuries, women have been present in myths and legends in secondary roles in stories starring male heroes.

Aina Bestard

A digestive system is how you get nutrients from the food you eat. Nutrients help you grow and develop. Your stomach is part of your digestive system.

Did you know that horses can't throw up? This is because the esophagus in horses has a one-way movement. Flamingos are usually pink because they eat lots of shrimp. Shrimp have carotenoids in their bodies.

In this unique book you will find out what's happening with different digestive systems of 70 animals... including humans!

Aina Bestard is an illustrator and textile designer. She studied design in Barcelona. She started working mainly in fashion and designed shoes for Camper for over five years.

She illustrates children's books and has created the series "What's Hidden" that has been published in 13 languages and more than 250,000 copies have been printed so far. # HUMBOLDT

Explorer of the Unreachable

Rocío Martínez

Alexander von Humboldt is a key figure in the history of ecology and biogeography who contributed to shape what is today ecology, as well as the environmentalist movement. His observation that the world's vegetation varies systematically with climate was one of his many contributions to science.

Humboldt's exploration of South America between 1800 and 1804 inspired seminal ideas about the interrelationship of nature, climate, and human activities.

In this book the author follows the path of Humboldt with amazing illustrations and texts from his journey.

Rocío Martínez is an author and illustrator of children's and young people's books. Her books have been awarded and translated into different languages. She has published 32 books. Last year, her book The King of the Forest was selected among the prestigious Braw Amazing Bookshelf at the Bologna Children's Book Fair. She has also been selected for Illustrators' Exhibition at the same fair in 1997 and 2001. She has exhibited at the 15th Bratislava Illustration Biennial, at the International Library of Munich and at the 100 Today Show at the International Congress of IBBY.

Series Curious Minds

A series of science outreach books designed for the youngest audience

Curiosity is a treasure.

An engine that takes us to ask us questions, to question what is established and look for answers beyond the obvious.

Many of the important scientific achievements have been driven by curiosity of those who asked "Why?" and how?".

This series has the purpose of transmitting knowledge, to entertain and, above all, to inspire curious minds.

You breathe about 23,000 times every day.

Every time you do it, whether you like it or not, you smell.

The air around you is full of molecules that you can't see with the naked eye. In one breath, they enter your interior so many molecules like stars you see in the sky.

Smell, like the rest of our senses, gives us information about our surroundings. It can also evoke vivid memories or generate emotional responses.

Berta Páramo Pino studied architecture but illustration led her into another direction. She specializes in non-fiction, she likes to travel unexplored paths in every subject that she investigates. She can speak with the same enthusiasm of a leech or a robot. She believes she is still on a learning process and that drawing helps her think and also expresses her way she sees the world. Her book Fluidoteca had a Mention as Opera Prima in Bologna's 2022 Awards. She has published Robotland with us.

The word metaphor comes to us from ancient Greek where it meant "transfer".

Philosophical metaphors have something in common: they transfer a conceptual word to a word of something that can be seen, an image. But something much more important beats in them: a different and revealing light to understand the world that surrounds us, with its colors and shapes.

This book reviews 24 metaphors and visions of significant philosophers throughout History.

Pedro Alcalde studied piano and composition and graduated in Philosophy from the Universitat de Barcelona. He is Master of Arts from Columbia University and holds a Ph.D. in Philosophy and Musicology from the Freie Universität in Berlin. His passions are Greek philosophy and music.

Merlín Alcalde holds a degree in Political Philosophy from the Sapienza University in Rome and a master's degree in Philosophy from Ca' Foscari University of Venice. He is passionate about political philosophy and anarchist thought. Although he has several hobbies, such as watching movies and wandering, reading is what resonates best with him.

Guim Tió is a painter. His works explore the human condition and the landscape, dealing with themes such as loneliness, the passage of time or oblivion, with humour, irony and provocation. His works have been exhibited in several countries such as Italy, China, Taiwan, South Korea, Mexico, Morocco, Australia, Canada or the United States.

Despite making up half the global population, women and girls have historically struggled – and still do – with less rights, less education, less opportunities, less freedom, less power, and less pay.

Feminism – the radical idea that women should have the same rights as men – and activism led by women globally have brought huge changes and progress for both women, men, and children. When women get angry, often because their lives, the lives of their children or their families are in danger, they become incredibly powerful, and are capable of bringing about huge change. More often than not, their protests are for everyone's rights, not just women's.

Rebecca June is a translator, storyteller and writer. Originally from the UK, she grew up in North London, in a family of actors, dancers and writers. From a young age she has participated in community protests and marches and studied Culture of Peace at university.

Ximo Abadía is a highly acclaimed artist, living and working in Spain. Author and illustrator of children's books, graphic novels, and comics. He was a finalist for the Golden Pinwheel Young Illustrator Competition. His album Frank was awarded the prize for Best Illustrated Album at the 2018 Heroes Comic Con.

Noemí Fabra

Noemí Fabra is an illustrator based in Barcelona. After gaining her degree in Art History at Universitat de Barcelona and Culture Management at the Universitat Ramon Llull, she decided to focus her career on illustration, studying at the Escola Massana. Her work is digital combined with pictorial elements such as ink or gouache. She likes illustration subjects as motherhood, women and nature in a minimalistic and full of color style.

We see and hear about hearts everywhere. A long time ago, people even thought that their emotions came from their hearts, maybe because the heart beats faster when a person is scared or excited.

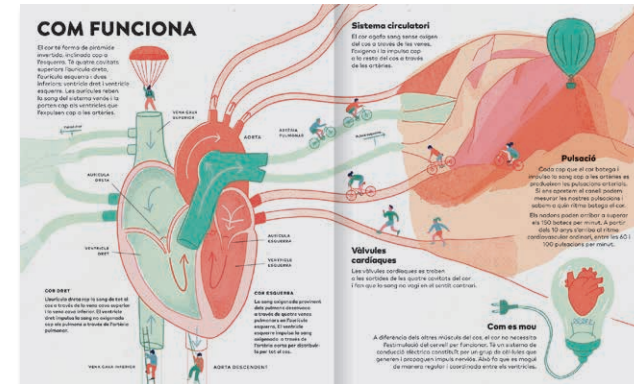

The heart is really a muscle, sort of like a pump, or two pumps in one. It pumps blood around your body.

But the heart, aside from a crucial organ of the body, has represented many things in history...

Daniel Montero Galán says that he struggled to verbally express himself as a child so he turned to communicating with the world through art. He has illustrated several children's books and has created artistic interior decor for a number of establishments. His fun, unusual style is appealing to both children and adults with its eye-catching curves and subtle textures. He has been working as an illustrator for more than fifteen years, having a great time in his small studio in Madrid.

FIND THE SUSPECT

Pablo Acosta & Julio Antonio Blasco

Have you ever wanted to be a police detective?

Well, now you can, by using this book to find the suspects and the culprit of the different stories explained at the beginning of the book.

A fun Mix and Match Flip Book to discover the suspect's face by reading carefully the description of a witness. Children will have to combine the different parts of every face to find the suspect and solve the case. The book provides a large number of possibilities to create different faces but there is only one combination that defines the right suspect and reveals his or her name.

Pablo Acosta, a young student of Spanish Philology, is starting to dip his toes in the publishing industry as he works as a freelance editing and proofreading aide. He is a passionate writer, and as he works on different creative projects, he enjoys practicing the art of character creation and weaving whacky and fun mini stories of all types of genres.

Julio Antonio Blasco graduated in Fine Arts. He has been working as an illustrator and graphic designer for more than 15 years. His work moves between illustration, painting, and collage. He has published more than 20 books translated to many languages.

GOOD NIGHT LITTLE...

Bàrbara Castro Urío

Quiet and essential, the book makes for perfect bedtime reading. It is also an introduction to shapes, colours and numbers.

The narrative offers opportunities for affectionate moments of interaction with the very young reader while stimulating logical and analytical thinking.

Bàrbara Castro Urío is an illustrator and graphic designer based in Barcelona. After a long career as a professional designer, she gave it up and dived into the world of illustration through a journey in which she discovered this medium as a new universe to express herself.

Focused on projects in cultural, social and cooperative areas, she enjoys children's illustration more than anything.

30 x 20.4 cm
Hard cover
Age 5+

Mariona Tolosa Sisteré is a Catalan illustrator. She is the successful author of our series The Secret Life that has been published into 19 different languages.

Kids love to talk about snot, poop, asses, farts, lice and other sorts of filthy things.

This series of books is packed with curious facts for children to learn about those everyday situations that coexist in their lives from a very young age: snot, boo-boos, viruses, tears, poop, farts... What they are, where they come from and how to avoid them.

Join Pee and Poo on their unforgettable journey filled with laughter, learning, and lots of fun!

THINGS YOU CAN DO IN THE...

Ximo Abadía

Ximo Abadía is a highly acclaimed artist, living and working in Spain. Author and illustrator of children's books, graphic novels, and comics. He was a finalist for the Golden Pinwheel Young Illustrator Competition. Ximo's magazine covers, editorial art, and work in advertising are familiar throughout Europe. His album Frank was awarded the prize for Best Illustrated Album at the 2018 Heroes Comic Con.

Being active and outside feels good. Children are free to explore, move about, and make noise ~ all delightful forms of self-expression that are often restricted indoors. In nature, children can run, jump, hop, skip, climb, roll, shout, play, dig a hole, swim in the sea... and many, many other things.

These beautiful visual journeys will take them to many places to explore the world.

25 ENIGMAS OF THE WORLD

Víctor Escandell & Víctor Sabaté

Víctor Escandell has worked in almost every aspect of illustration and design you can possibly think of. In 1998, he set up his own studio, Alehop, from which he keeps working, experimenting, and innovating.

Víctor Sabaté graduated in Political Science with postgraduate studies in creative writing and translation. Currently he focuses on children's literature. He has also translated essay books on philosophy and humanities, as well as children's and youth literature.

The world is filled with such a wide variety of wonderful destinations and beautiful places to visit, it can be difficult to compile a list of the best ones.

The list of the world's best places to visit has to include great cities, like New York, Paris, London, and so on, each of which is filled with a multitude of individual sites or must-see places to visit. The list also includes specific sites, monuments, and locations, each also worth a visit to discover and solve their enigmas.

Series ENIGMAS

Víctor Escandell & Ana Gallo & Víctor Sabaté

Read the clues, pay attention to the illustrations and lift the flaps to reveal the answers. Play alone or with friends and family, together or in teams. Collect points for every right answer and become the best Enigmas detective in town!

Packed with clever enigmas and clue-filled and detailed illustrations, this series of books compiles 25 mind-twisting enigmas that will challenge the brain of little sleuths, training their deductive reasoning, enhancing their attention to details and improving their lateral thinking, all while having a good time!

Ana Gallo was a journalist, but since 2000 she works as a freelancer for different publishers, taking part in design, editing, and proofreading, and has written lots of books on many subjects.

Espionage took on a new urgency in the 20th century, as emergent technologies and global conflicts led to the advent of complex, globally influential new spy networks. Intelligence organisations, throughout World War One, World War Two and the Cold War, deployed elite secret agents to gather intel and ultimately gain the upper hand.

Here are 8 of the most notorious spies in history, from Queen Elizabeth I's 16th-century spymaster to the Serbian-born agent who may have inspired the character of James Bond.

Espionage, or the act of intelligence gathering, is as old as civilisation itself

Soledad Romero began her career as an art and creative director in large advertising agencies. Driven by her passion for books, she currently dedicates herself exclusively to the creation of children's books. She acts as author and external editor for various publishers.

Julio Antonio Blasco graduated in Fine Arts. He has been working as an illustrator and graphic designer for more than 15 years. His work moves between illustration, painting, and collage. He has published more than 20 books translated to many languages.

Series OUTSIDE THE LAW

Everyone loves a good heist story, a crazy escape or a spy adventure. Putting together a team of thieves with complementing skills, making an elaborate plan, dealing with unexpected twists and turns ~ what's not to love?

In these books children will find great examples of real thrilling heists, impossible escapes or mysterious spy stories that will surprise them.
