

A True Lesson

The timeless lesson of the ant and the grasshopper resonates once more in modern verse.

Through the empty forest she went,
Facing the wind's fierce blow.
The sky grew dark and turbulent,
Bringing frost and icy snow.

The grasshopper wakes up to a radiant summer day. But what is that hardworking ant doing? Is she crazy?

"Work? I'd much rather sing and rest under the warm sun!" the grasshopper declares. But when winter arrives with a sudden storm, she finds herself cold and lost. The grasshopper can only cry out: "Help!"

Post-Reading Challenge
